Group interview

NatWest
Group

We've created this interview guide so you know:

- What to expect
- How to prepare
- How to contact us

Our purpose is to champion potential, helping people, families and businesses to thrive. It allows us to build deep, lasting relationships with our customers and that's the best way for us to help them succeed.

As a purpose-led learning organisation we need to recruit people with the right capabilities, knowledge, skills and experience, but also with a learning mindset. This ability and motivation to continually learn, reflect, share and collaborate will make sure we can upskill and reskill to help our customers and communities, and each other, to thrive.

To help us do this, you'll be taken through a structured interview. Here's what we'll cover:

What to expect

Motivation and Fit

We want to find out more about you – if you're external why you want to work for NatWest Group, and if you're internal what you know about the business area or function. We also want to know what it is about the job that appeals to you.

You'll find lots of information on NatWest Group Careers and NatWest Group application advice page, news websites and social media. As an internal candidate you can also find information on our internal intranet.

Knowledge, Experience and Technical Skills

We'll ask you some questions specific to the job, exploring your relevant knowledge, skills and experience.

Critical People Capability (CPC) questions

We'll also ask questions to help us understand your behaviour in the work environment, using our CPC skills and behaviours. These are outlined on the last page of this guide.

We'll be looking for examples of past experience that demonstrate your typical behaviour at work. This is because past behaviour is a good predictor of future behaviour. Your interview will cover the two CPCs that are most important to the job, together with 'Connected'. The CPC's will be shared with you as part of the interview confirmation. This is to support you with your interview preparation and help you perform as well as you can.

Here's an example – If the job you've applied for involves working with others, we might ask a question such as "Talk to me about a time when you supported another team member who was struggling to meet a deadline?". You'd then tell us about your experience and what you did, and we'll ask some follow-up questions to make sure we've fully understood your example.

Questions for us

The interview isn't just an opportunity for us to get to know you better; it's your opportunity to see if we're right for you. You can ask us more about the job, culture, team, training, progression, or anything else you'd like to know.

What to expect (cont'd)

How to prepare

Spend time thinking about previous or current experiences that you could use as examples. These could be experiences from work, at school or university, voluntary work or personal life. Think about the skills and knowledge you will need and what examples you could provide, as well as examples relating to the CPCs.

Try to think of different examples; this will help show the breadth of your experience, rather than using the same example for many questions. Ideally, use examples from the past 18 months so you can remember them clearly. It's a good idea to prepare by making a list of your examples, summarising the key points you want to make.

You're welcome to refer to notes in the interview but we'll be looking to have an engaging conversation with you, so try not to rely on them too much.

We'll encourage you to take your time, thinking about your answers before giving them. You'll also be allowed to go back to previous questions if you remember something important.

The STAR Technique – a well known way to prepare and answer competency based questions:

Situation	Or background to the example.
Task	Task you had to complete.
Action	The specific actions you took to complete the task.
Results	The result of your actions. It's important you focus on your own role and what you did – Try to resist the temptation to talk about 'we', 'us' and 'the team'.

Some interviews include a practical exercise. We'll let you know if you're going to be asked to complete a practical exercise, case study or role play. You'll have a full brief on the day, with time to prepare.

External? You'll find more interview hints and tips on our NatWest Group application advice pages.
